

Fall Soccer Training

September 30th – November 20th

This Soccer Training Program will develop the player’s individual technical ability, including ball familiarity, dribbling, control, first touch, passing, and shooting. The players will also work on developing body mechanics for improvement in agility and balance and motor aspects of soccer. In addition, coaching will emphasize 2v2 and 3v3 tactical training – including – principles and functions of attacking and defending as an individual and a team.

Training Program: Players will concentrate on their development through a rigorous training program once or twice a week for an hour and thirty minutes to develop the player’s technical ability, speed and agility. Although in this program players don’t participate in a league, every session will end with internal scrimmages of small sided games to allow players maximum touches on the ball and so they can put into practice the new learned skills.
